This metallic section transitions cleanly into a contrasting matte black base or cap at the bottom. NRG LIGHTING UP&DOWN APPLIQUE

The modern wall sconce is a striking example of geometric and minimalist design, presenting a sculptural form that also functions as an indirect light source. Crafted from what appears to be brushed or matte brass-tone metal, the fixture features a long, narrow profile mounted vertically against a plain white wall. Its key characteristic is the sharp, angular folding of the metal, creating a three-dimensional shape with pointed, chevron-like ends at the top and bottom. The design is intended to conceal the light source inside, typically casting a soft, dramatic wash of light both upward and downward onto the wall surface. This lighting effect serves to emphasize the fixture's sleek, contemporary aesthetic, making it a piece of architectural decor that provides both illumination and a high-end, designer focal point to the space.

NRG LIGHTING BLADES ARCHITECTURAL LIGHT

This is a dramatic, large-scale lighting fixture or architectural wall sculpture characterized by a bold, three-dimensional geometric form. It is constructed from sheet metal, likely brushed brass or a similar brass-toned material, giving it a rich, warm, and matte golden finish. The design is heavily influenced by Origami or Deconstructivist architecture, as it appears to be folded or bent into sharp, angular planes.

The fixture is composed of several large, irregular, angled panels that jut out significantly from the wall. The main visual element is a tall, central surface that is angled sharply, with another panel overlapping it on the left, creating a sense of layered depth and movement. There is a prominent vertical slit or recess visible on the central panel, which is likely where the hidden LED or light source is housed

NRG LIGHTING MOSHI MOSHI APPLIQUE

This is a sleek, contemporary lighting applique characterized by its highly geometric and minimalist form. The unit is essentially a tall, thin vertical panel, often described as a blade or plank, that projects outward from the wall. It is finished in a brushed or satin metallic tone, strongly suggesting brass due to its warm, matte golden colour. The fixture is mounted using a smaller, rectangular base flush against the wall. The design is intended for sophisticated, indirect lighting, with the light source cleverly concealed within the structure to cast an architectural up-and-down glow along the wall surface rather than shining light directly into the room. This makes the piece function as much as a sculptural wall element as it does a light fixture.

Dimensions : 12 cm (W) 10 cm (D) 30/60 cm (H)
PRICE : 4000/7700 EGP

The combination of the contrasting matte black exterior and the reflective gold interior makes this an elegant and sophisticated piece. It is designed purely as architectural or accent lighting, creating a strong visual statement and ambiance rather than providing general room illumination. It would be highly suitable for hallways, living room walls, or exteriors in a minimalist or high-end contemporary setting.

NRG LIGHTING BOHO CIRCLE APPLIQUE

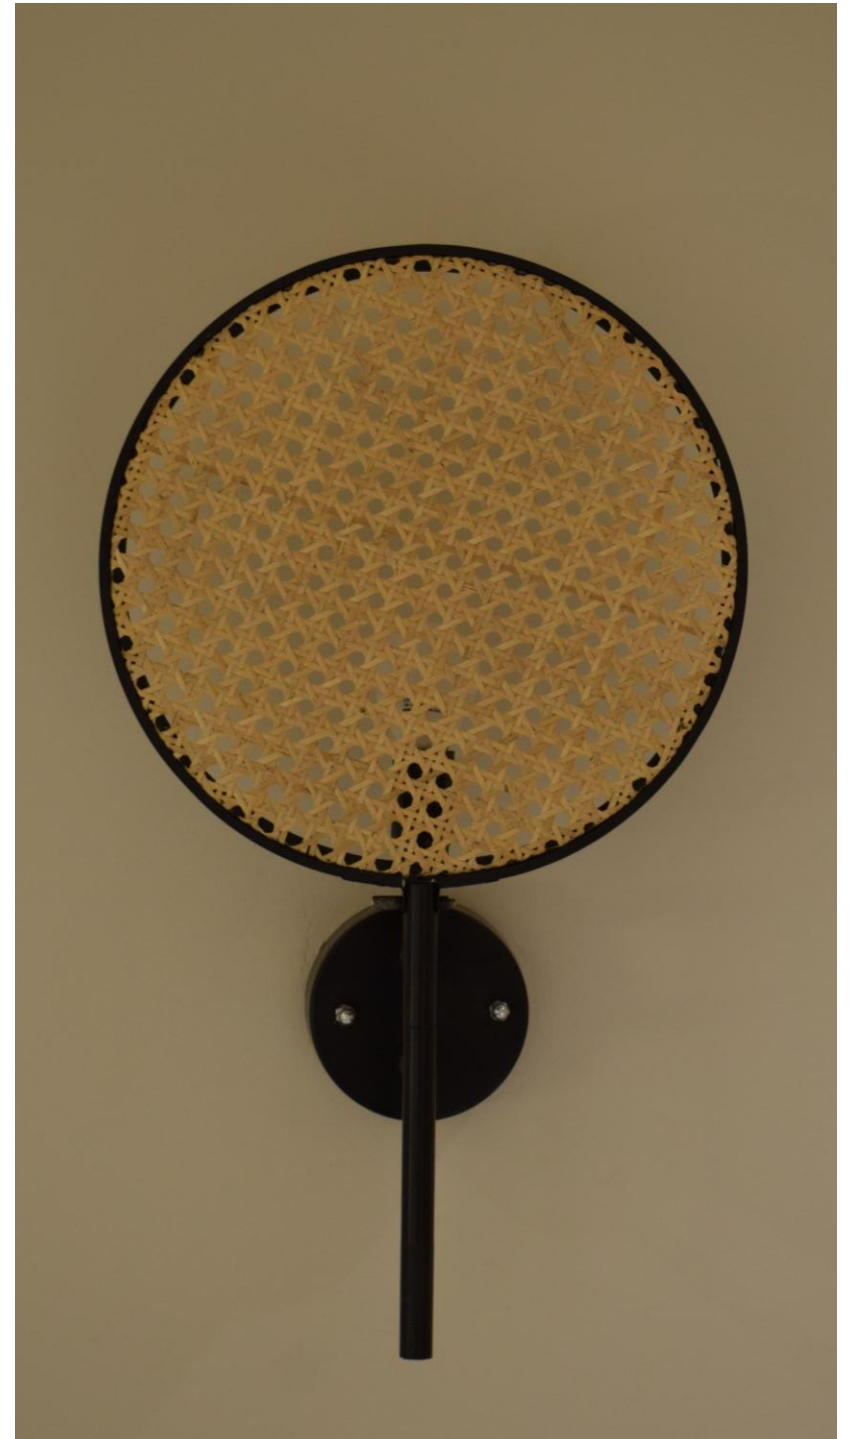

The most prominent element is the large, circular shade which utilizes caning or woven rattan/wicker—specifically the tight, hexagonal "cane webbing" pattern—as its diffuser material. This natural, light-coloured weave allows light to filter through, creating a soft, textured glow.

The circular cane panel is framed by a slim, dark border, likely black metal or dark-stained wood, giving the piece a defined and contemporary edge.

The shade is held in place by a simple, dark-colored mounting arm (likely black metal). This arm extends down from the back of the shade to connect with a circular backplate that is flush against the wall. The backplate has exposed screws, emphasizing a subtle industrial or rustic detail. The lower section of the mounting mechanism extends into a thin, downward-pointing rod, perhaps for decorative balance.

NRG LIGHTING GOLD OOH APPLIQUE

The fixture is mounted using a large, circular backplate finished in a soft, brushed gold or brass, contrasting subtly against the deep blue wall. Extending from the backplate is a horizontal arm, which appears to transition from a darker, possibly antiqued brass or bronze, near the backplate to a brighter, brushed gold tone further out. This arm connects to a vertical rod via an adjustable joint, suggesting the light head's position might be customizable.

The light source is housed within a cylindrical or drum-shaped shade at the end of the vertical rod. This shade has a distinct, modern feature: its bottom edge appears to be wavy, fluted, or scalloped, adding a delicate, textural detail to the otherwise austere design. The entire fixture is constructed from various metallic finishes, primarily brushed or satin brass tones, giving it a sophisticated, jewellery-like quality.

FLOOR LAMP

This is a striking, mid-century modern or contemporary floor lamp characterized by a significant contrast in materials and form. The lamp stands on a tall, robust conical or truncated pyramid base finished in a dark, matte material, likely a dark brown or black textured metal or composite. This solid base features a vertical channel or slit running down the front and is accented by a brass ring at the bottom and a brass control knob/switch near the base. Extending from the top of the dark base is a long, articulated brass arm that acts as a counterbalance system. One end of the arm supports the primary light source, housed in a domed, polished brass shade with a white bulb visible underneath. The opposite end of the arm is weighted by a smaller, spherical brass counterbalance ball. This design allows the light source to be angled, creating an adjustable and dynamic lighting solution with a sophisticated, architectural silhouette.
